Smiles are abundant at Beta parties, even in the middle of February. Scotty Millington, Tammy Rembisz, Jena Woffard and Jeff Morrell take a break at the Valentine's Party.

Ready to go at the Beta Barn Dance are Josh Prickett, Ken Faegins, John Bell, Bennett Fuller, Bill Banowsky, Dale Reneau, Brian Busby and Steve Douglas, dressed for the west.

These Betas try to see how many guys they can crowd in a corner at the Valentine's Party.

Imagination and individuality continued to thrive at 800 Chautauqua. The men of Beta Theta Pi combined their diverse interests of today with their rich traditions of the past to strengthen their Gamma Phi chapter.

Crisp autumn weather formed the perfect background for Beta Barn Dance, traditionally a Beta favorite. In early September, Betas celebrated at Victory Party. Excited to begin a new semester, Beta men also enjoyed spring's Valentine Formal and Swamp Stomp.

Along with the usual classroom participation, Betas urged their members to explore varied facets of university life. John Raley was active in Student Congress and Dale Reneau directed Sooner Scandals. Other members distinguished themselves as top ten members of the freshman and senior classes. Beta men conquered intramurals by winning the all-around intramural trophy.

On Easter, Betas helped disabled children by spending an afternoon visiting the Cerebral Palsy Center. Service as well as fun is important to Beta men.

Beta members enjoyed dropping television sets out the window. Death to the tube!
